ANDREW J. PECK, United States Magistrate Judge:

So that there is no misunderstanding, the Court expects the parties to proceed under the existing discovery schedule while the Court considers defendants' stay motion. In other words, the mere filing of the stay motion does not stay proceedings (nor should any party try to achieve that effect by dragging its feet in discovery). The Court will rule on the motion as soon as it is able, once it is fully briefed and the requested oral argument is held.

SO ORDERED.
